The Prime minister ruined the bells at ØM

The air was thick with rum, song and tenderness when ØM Motherfuckers did their version of the opening of Roskilde Festival 05. The camp Prime Minister destroyed the bell but is still up for re-election.

Date:
 Friday
 01.07.2005

- Welcome to today's seminar.

The PM looked out over his audience. He was wearing a pink dressing gown, green cap, a howling bullhorn and a voice so coarse his audience almost could not hear him. Maybe that was why he gave the bullhorn to the minister of health. He was an impressive sight among the pavilions with his kilt, beard and huge gut.

ØM Motherfuckers has become a classic Roskilde camp, and of course they were present in 2005. It is located in camping East and is defined by their grand ceremony one hour before the official opening of the festival. The two ministers of the camp, Esben Granrod and Lasse Mestervom, hold inflaming speeches at what is claimed to be the real, official opening of Roskilde. In 2005 minister of health Mestervom chose to focus on the dodgy alliance between camping West and George W. Bush:

-You remember how they flew fighter jets over the camps the year before last. How they tried to wash us away last year, and how they are trying to burn us into submission this year, the minister declared with a nod at the sunny skies.

Luckily camping East had a clever countermove to the West-Bush alliance:

-We have some Norwegian ladies undercover in the West-government, the minister revealed without elaborating on how exactly the sabotage was performed. But an anonymous member of the audience whispered to yours truly:

- It has to do with pussy.

Other than that the minister spoke mainly of health. He was at the forefront of the battle for a better health as he interrupted his speech with several 'health breaks'. These were promptly used for a massive consumption of Hansen rum and toasts with ØM and the audience. And the minister also had advice for improving the health of all others:

- If everybody fucks everybody, everybody gets to fuck, the minister declared. A message received by cheers by his many subjects. Finally the PM re-entered the stage. He grabbed the shaft of a huge bell and swung it so vigorously that the shaft broke. Rather than pursuing his bells he played a few notes on a guitar and had the entire ØM-camp singing.

Several members of the audience deemed the PM's performance to be very good.
-He definitely continues next year. Nobody understands him, but he has plenty of support, one ØM-Motherfucker said.
